

Irish Scottish Roots – Scottish Genealogy and Local History Resources

Irish Scottish Roots is an independent genealogy and heritage research website founded by Terry Donlan, who has researched his Irish and Scottish family history since 1985. The site brings together historical context, practical research guidance, and heritage travel planning resources for people exploring their ancestral connections.

Explore our Scottish research resources

Clan Fraser history – Articles examining Fraser family and clan history, historical settings, ancestral connections, and places associated with the Frasers.

Historical maps and places – Visual resources connecting Scottish clan history to geography, including historically informed maps. Territorial interpretations are checked against documentary evidence, with uncertainty identified where boundaries are approximate.

Genealogy and archival research guides – Practical introductions to tracing Scottish ancestors, finding relevant records and collections, and planning archival or local-history research.

Ireland and Scotland Itinerary Reality Checker – A free planning tool to help heritage travelers assess routes and schedules for research visits, archives, historical sites, and ancestral communities.

Website: <https://irishscottishroots.blog/>

Free itinerary checker: irishscottishroots.blog/ireland-scotland-itinerary-reality-checker/

Contact: irishscottishroots@gmail.com