

Maryhill Museum

At Maryhill Burgh Halls

Sharing and preserving a unique local heritage in the heart of Maryhill

‘Nice environment & vibrant place with many arts activities.’

- Paria Goodarzi - Local artist

‘A friendly place that does a lot to involve the community.’

- Member of local community

The project::

- Establish the Maryhill Museum at Maryhill Burgh Halls - convert an office unit into a local heritage hub where local groups and organisations can come together to celebrate Maryhill's history.
- Engage with schools, colleges, universities and local community groups to uncover local heritage, tell the story of Maryhill's past and strive for a sustainable future.
- Achieve Visit Scotland Quality Assurance by providing heritage engagement opportunities which are accessible, educational and enjoyable for a range of visitors including families, young people and adults.

Maryhill Burgh Halls Trust is committed to collecting and making accessible the rich heritage of Maryhill in Northwest Glasgow. Memories, photographs, stained glass and artwork has been donated since the Burgh Halls' regeneration project in 2009, which reflects the diverse heritage of this historic burgh. The collection at the Burgh Halls has grown beyond the capacity of the public foyer areas and needs a new, dedicated home to sustain this growing heritage site. Maryhill Museum at the Burgh Halls will be a focal heritage hub in the area to tell Maryhill's story with opportunities for community groups and local organisations to showcase their work in confidence that their projects are shared for a wide audience, in a secure environment.
