Online resources

Local Studies provide free access to a number of websites that enable in-depth searching of historic newspapers.

The British Newspaper Archive (BNA)

The BNA is very useful for searching historic newspapers. It includes Aberdeen Herald and General Advertiser (1844-1862), Aberdeen Evening Express (1879-1955), Aberdeen Free Press (1855-1897), Aberdeen Press and Journal (1748-1950), Aberdeen People's Journal (1863-1939), Aberdeen Weekly Journal (1914-1945), and much more.

The library has a subscription for unlimited on-site access. Access is free but users must create an account on the website. This allows for articles and searches to be saved.

News cuttings collection

Our newspaper cuttings collection includes articles of interest dating from the late 19th Century onwards.

The articles are organised into biographical cuttings and general topics of interest (e.g. Air accidents, Gordon Highlanders, The Lemon Tree, Place names, University of Aberdeen etc.).

The collection is stored in a staff area only. Please ask a member of staff for assistance.

Bound volumes of cuttings on a variety of topics are also available on the open shelves in the Information Centre (e.g. Beach Ballroom, Aberdeen Harbour, Bridges, Aberdeen in the Fifties etc.).

Newspapers on microfilm

Our collection of newspapers on microfilm cover Aberdeen City and the surrounding area.

We also hold microfilm copies of The Times newspaper, The Sunday Times and the Times Literary Supplement for certain years.

Microfilm reader machines are available in the Information Centre, Central Library. There is no booking system but during busy periods, sessions will be limited to one hour maximum.

Printing facilities are available, costing 20p per A4 sheet and 40p per A3 sheet.

Please consult our Newspapers on microfilm leaflet for full details on our holdings.
