

SLHF NEWS

We are sad to report that Professor Niall Logan of Balmore and Baldernock Parish, has very recently passed away after a period of illness. Niall along with his good friend the late Professor Paul Bishop ran the Baldernock Heritage and History Group for many successful years. Until last year Niall also served on our Advisory Committee and was a great supporter of SLHF. The Trustees extend their sympathy to his family and friends. An obituary will appear in the next edition of Scottish Local History.

Scottish Local History Forum AGM 2024

The Forum's 2024 AGM was held on Monday 28 October by Zoom video conference. The meeting heard details of the Forum's activities over the year (previously recorded in Clish-Clash) and that the accounts showed an increased deficit compared to last year – £3,981 compared to £1,743 – that can be largely attributed to the absence of any conference receipts and the one-off costs for the Forum Review session. In addition, no Gift Aid reclaim has been made since 2021-22, one will be made in this financial year, which should result in a surplus being recorded for the year. Notwithstanding these recent deficits, it was reiterated that the Forum's finances remain healthy. The Trustees felt that no change in membership subscription rates was required, and the meeting endorsed their recommendation to maintain the current subscription rates for the membership year 2025-26.

Jamie Sutherland did not stand for re-election as a trustee and was thanked for his work with social media on the Forum's behalf and his great help during the Forum Review, analysing the members' survey results, was acknowledged. With no new nominations, the remaining eight were re-elected with the existing officers remaining in post.

Nine existing AC members had accepted nomination for re-election: Murray Cook, Ian Shearer, Ian Copland, Sandra Purves, Iain Duffus, Patrick Hart, Derrick Johnstone, Scott Broadfoot and Lucy Dean and, there being no additional nominations, were duly elected to represent their respective organisations to the Trustees and help direct the Forum's activities.

Full Minutes of the meeting, along with the finalised Report and Accounts, will be available on the website in due course.

LIBRARIES, ARCHIVES AND MUSEUMS

■ 'A proper repository':
General Register House
1774-2024 The display celebrating the 250th anniversary of General Register House has been extended. The display will now be on show until 28 November:

Exhibitions | National Records of Scotland \(nrscotland.gov.uk\)

■ There are also a number of public tours of HM General Register House taking place to celebrate the 250th anniversary of the building. The next is on 20 November 2024, but further dates into 2025 will soon be released: Public tour: 250th anniversary of General Register House Tickets, Multiple Dates | Eventbrite Two talks relevant to the anniversary are also available: Dr Anthony Lewis The foundation of General Register House in Edinburgh's first New Town – 250th anniversary - YouTube and Dr Tristram Clarke Before Adam: the origins of Register House - YouTube

■ Mills of Britain website This new website allows you to explore the locations and details of over 15,000 mill sites mapped in 18th-19th century Britain. Funded by the Leverhulme Trust, this project has been undertaken collaboratively by researchers in the University of Glasgow and University of Wollongong, initiated by the late Professor Paul Bishop. You can browse and filter the mill records by survey date, map symbology, mill type, as well as their distances from rivers. The mill locations have been carefully compiled from a wide range of sources, including county maps and the Roy Military Survey of Scotland. There is also detailed information on the background to the project, the survey methodology, as well as sections on accuracy and georeferencing. The new Mills of Britain website complements the Scottish Water Mills website (<https://maps.nls.uk/projects/mills/>), launched in 2021, but gathers information from earlier map sources, and covers England and Wales, as well as Scotland. ■ Scottish Council on Archives Annual Conference: BUILDING EVIDENCE, Tuesday, 10 December, 9.30-16.00 at The Engine Shed, Stirling will explore how archives and records support engagement with, conservation of, and research into Scotland's historic environment. The event will be structured around the three priority areas of Our Past, Our Future – The Strategy for Scotland's Historic Environment:

1. Delivering the transition to net zero
2. Empowering resilient and inclusive communities and places
3. Building a wellbeing economy

In addition to these key themes, Building Evidence will shine a spotlight on the urgent need for a national strategy for archives and records in Scotland, ensuring their preservation and relevance for future generations. ■ Scottish Council on Archives Annual Lecture: Professor Robert Bartlett - History in Flames at The National Library of Scotland, Edinburgh on Tuesday 3 December 2024, 17.00-18.00. To what extent does our knowledge of the past rely upon written sources? And what happens when these sources are destroyed? Focusing on the manuscripts of the Middle Ages, Professor Robert Bartlett's new book, History in Flames explores cases in which large volumes of written material were destroyed during a single day. This destruction didn't occur by accident of fire or flood but by human forces such as arson, shelling and bombing. In this lecture, Professor Bartlett will talk about his new book that examines the political and military events that preceded the moment of destruction, from the Franco-Prussian War and the Irish Civil War to the complexities of World War II; it analyses the material lost and how it came to be where it was. At the same time, it discusses the heroic efforts made by scholars and archivists to preserve these manuscripts, even partially. History in Flames reminds us that historical knowledge rests on material remains, and that these remains are vulnerable. ■ Scottish Archives and Records Year in Review 2023-24 SCA present the latest edition of the Archives Review, celebrating the work and projects being undertaken in collections across the country. Submitted articles include: the work of Scotland's Business Archives Surveying Officer; an amazing collaborative project between DC Thomson and the Moving Image Archive, National Library of Scotland; two collections linked by their unique and internationally significant importance to the history of Scotland's water resources – the McClean Hydrometric archive and the papers of ecologist John Berry; Scotland's first archive dedicated to LGBTQ+ young people; a wonderful artistic project commissioned by the School of Scottish Studies Archives called A Carrying Stream | Sruth an Eòlais; and a cataloguing project revealing the records of one of Scotland's New Towns. This is just a snapshot of what the Review contains. View the Year in Review here: <https://www.scottisharchives.org.uk/latest/scottish-archives-and-records-year-in-review-23-24/>

■ Congratulations to Highland Archive Service for winning the 2024 Record Keeping Service of the Year Award, one of the four 2024 excellence awards by the Archives and Records Association (UK and Ireland). Further Scottish winners were Rachael Muir, surveying officer of the Business Archives Council of Scotland, who was named as Record Keeper of the Year, and Tom Bennett, historic archives and collections officer at George Watson's College, Edinburgh, who shared the award as New Professional of the Year.

HISTORY NEWS

- VisitScotland iCentres Some time ago VisitScotland announced that they would be closing their 25 Information Centres (iCentres) across Scotland over a two-year period. The process began in September 2024, with the first five closures (Bowmore, Dumfries, Pitlochry, Stirling and Ullapool) on 28 September and another four (Aberdeen, Balloch, Jedburgh and Perth) two days later. With four more during October-November (Aberfoyle, Lerwick, Oban and Stornoway) the process will be more than half-complete by the end of 2024. It is intended to take one further year to round off the process, with closure of the last Centre, at Glasgow, in January 2026.

VisitScotland clearly wishes to concentrate on promoting Scotland to the wider world (mainly via the internet) without any consideration of Scotland-based people who like to visit other places within the country. There must be many members of SLHF who are interested in 'comparative local history' and therefore like to spend time visiting localities across Scotland. Especially when visiting a locality for the first time, it seems likely that some will have found its iCentre a useful source of local information, including local history. As well as verbal guidance from Centre staff and the usual wide range of free leaflets, very often they will have been able to select items for purchase from a similarly wide range of inexpensive booklets for sale.

From this viewpoint, we are losing a significant source of local history information at local level. It is true that some places have visitor centres that are locally run, without over-dependence on VisitScotland, but loss of 25 visitor centres across the country, within a short period of time, will undoubtedly impact unfavourably on the quality of visitor experience within Scotland.

■ Witch Hunt 1649 An unusual educational tool has been brought to our attention: <https://witchhunt1649.com> gives access to a pair of engaging and educational card games about Scottish witch-hunting, developed by a team at the University of Warwick. The games are set in the Lothians. They aim to explore the topic in a sensitive and non-sensationalised way, promoting understanding of the historical backdrop and empathy for the victims of witch-hunting. They are suitable for use in university or school classrooms, at public events/workshops or at home. The games are available for free download or for purchase, with all proceeds going to charity.

■ Perth Charterhouse Project Back in September your editor was lucky enough to be invited along to witness some of the investigations being undertaken to locate the site of the Perth Charterhouse. Access to the grounds of King James VI Hospital and the gardens of some of the surrounding properties had been given to archaeologists to use ground penetrating radar to try and pick up evidence of the layout of Scotland's only medieval Carthusian monastery. - In our last issue we mentioned the return of The Reunion. A recent episode reunited survivors and first responders of the Clutha Helicopter Crash which happened in November 2013. Some very painful and powerful memories. <https://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/m0022kh2>
- Dig Where We Stand is a five-part series from BBC Radio 3's The Essay, a range of presenters revisit traditional British folk songs from the archives and return to places where they were first recorded to discuss what folk music tells us about our history. The journeys include Arbroath and the Yarrow Valley. <https://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/m00209qh>
- A regular listen for both urban and rural folk on BBC Radio 4 is On Your Farm. It has recently celebrated its launch 60 years ago. Well worth your time! <https://www.bbc.co.uk/sounds/play/m0022c06>
- Archive on 4: Reweaving the Threads, 40 years on is an atmospheric documentary that mixes voices from the past with new interviews. Its focus is on one of the eeriest dramas even shown on British television. The transmission was on 23 September 1984 and offered an account of the effects of nuclear war and a subsequent nuclear winter on Sheffield. Be warned this is horrifying. The title of original the drama was Threads. So realistic that one contributor said 'I remember going into town a few days afterwards, surprised that Sheffield was still standing'. The original drama recently appeared on BBC4 on 9 October 2024.
- The fake heiress who was obsessed with Scotland features in the latest series of Lady Killers presented by Lucy Worsley <https://www.bbc.co.uk/sounds/series/m0023jkn>
- This Cultural Life is an excellent series hosted by John Wilson. It features long interviews with a host of people from the arts with over 100 episodes. Authors, filmmakers and many others. A recent interview with Margaret Drabble was fascinating. <https://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/m0010fl4>
- Along the theme of extended interviews, the programme Political Thinking has Nick Robinson interviewing leading politicians of our day. A recent episode was focussed on John Swinney. <https://www.bbc.co.uk/sounds/play/m0023pbv>
- Elsewhere on BBC iPlayer is a documentary Lena Zavaroni: The Forgotten Child Star. Further details are on the following link.
- Historian David Olusoga traces parallel lives of residents of two apartment blocks - one in Berlin and one in London during the Second World War. A House through Time: Two Cities offers four fascinating episodes starting just after the end of the First World War.
- The Town That Thread Built offers a documentary charting the social history of Paisley. It focusses on local millowners J&P Coats who became one of the biggest companies in the world in the 1950s.
- The recent death of former First Minister Alex Salmond is likely to lead to some tribute and profile programmes. First off is the ever-reliable Radio 4 Last Word. Elsewhere on BBC iPlayer you can catch up on some early tributes paid to Mr. Salmond. Recently broadcast and available on BBC iPlayer is: Alex Salmond: The Man Who Changed Scotland - BBC iPlayer
- Surviving Politics with Michael Gove includes an episode with former First Minister Humza Yousaf.
- The 40th Anniversary of the Brighton Bomb has generated a series of programmes in different formats:
 - Brighton: the Bomb That Changed Politics can be listened to on BBC Sounds. This was first broadcast in 2009. Presenter Michael Dobbs who was at the Grand Hotel when the bomb detonated talks of the legacy of event. <https://tinyurl.com/4sdbafht>
 - The Brighton Bomb is a series of 10 episodes launched on BBC Sounds on 7 October 2024. Each episode offers an excellent chronology of the sequence of events. <https://tinyurl.com/scmz8k62>
- Meanwhile on BBC iPlayer the following are available:
 - Brighton Bomb is a documentary first shown in 2004 by award-winning journalist Peter Taylor which offers a first-hand account of the bombing <https://www.bbc.co.uk/iplayer/episode/m0023sww/brighton-bomb>
 - Bombing Brighton: the Plot to... takes a fresh look at the 1985 bombing featuring new testimony from many of those affected and a revealing interview with the man who planted the bomb, Patrick Magee. Developed by an award-winning documentary team of Once Upon a Time in Northern Ireland.
- Finally, a gem from BBC Radio Scotland. The Last Lumberjack is the story of Sam Martinez who travelled from Belize to help Britain in the war effort. During the Second World War almost 900 forestry workers came to Scotland from British Honduras, now known as Belize. Until recently, their story was largely forgotten. In 2016, aged 106, Sam Martinez shared his memories before he died.

MEET A TRUSTEE – DR ALISON ROSIE

I am a native of Caithness, a much-overlooked area of Scotland which is full of ancient remains. I have always been fascinated by history and archaeology and, while at school, was a volunteer on the dig at Camster Cairns, directed by Lionel Masters from the University of Glasgow, as well as at the Clow Chapel near Watten. After studying medieval history at the University of Edinburgh, I undertook a year at Aberystwyth for my archive diploma before returning to Edinburgh for a PhD in French court spectacle in the 15th century. In more recent years my interests have moved to early modern Scotland.

In 1986 I joined the staff of the Scottish Record Office (now the National Records of Scotland), retiring last year. I spent most of my career in the National Register of Archives for Scotland (NRAS), the body which supports owners of all types (landowners, businesses, societies, sports clubs, community archives and private individuals) with advice on the care and preservation of their archives and makes information about them available to researchers. During that time, I served on the councils of the Business Archives for Scotland, the Community Archives Heritage Group (CAHG Scotland) and Sports Heritage Scotland.

I am delighted to become a Trustee of the Scottish Local History Forum and look forward to taking part in the Forum's activities.
