NEW SERVICE

Market your publication via SLHF

<https://www.slhf.org/books>

Have you or your organisation published a book on local history, but you don't have a way of promoting it or accepting payment online?

SLHF's website now has the functionality to take online orders and credit card payments via PayPal for its own services. The Trustees have decided to trial a new service to members, allowing promotion, online ordering and online payment of relevant books published by individual members or member organisations.

How does it work?

- Your book is displayed on the SLHF website.
- Orders are placed on the website and payment is received by SLHF via PayPal.
- SLHF notifies you of the order details, and you mail the item to the customer.
- Any sums raised (less Paypal handling fees and small commission for SLHF) are sent by SLHF to the author/publisher once a year.

If you would like your book to be sold via the website, do contact us to discuss further. Please note this service is subject to Trustees' approval and is not available if you already have a marketing agent.

WHAT'S ON

▪ 13-30 November 2014.

Previously... Scotland's History Festival

Now in its fourth year the festival has broadened its reach around central Scotland, and brings many different events under its umbrella. Venues include Dunfermline, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Moffat, St Andrews, Stirling and elsewhere. Many events are free while others are ticketed. Walking tours, talks, classes and special themes, including Carnegie Day on November 25 in Dunfermline and a three day history festival in St Andrews from 27-30 November.

<http://www.historyfest.co.uk/>

As part of the festival, the Old Edinburgh Club is organising an afternoon of free talks on 22 November.
